The schedule represents programs approved for development by Senate. Developing and approving a new program for implementation consists of five phases and typically takes 2-3 years to complete. The bars represent the launch cycle, which is the number of years between the target intake and the year the program first appeared on the schedule. Launch cycles taking five years or longer have pink bars. Go to the Program Planning site (<https://adm.viu.ca/university-planning-analysis/overview>) for more information.
